

Interface®

Established in 1973, Interface is the world's largest designer and maker of carpet tiles. They have a global presence yet are available right here in Guernsey. The company says that for them design is a mindset and sustainability is the journey of a lifetime, and it is an ethos reflected in their products.

Design is central to Interface, and they offer a wide range of carpet tiles in colours, patterns and sizes to suit most spaces. From muted shades to bold statements and patterns, there is an option for everybody and every room.

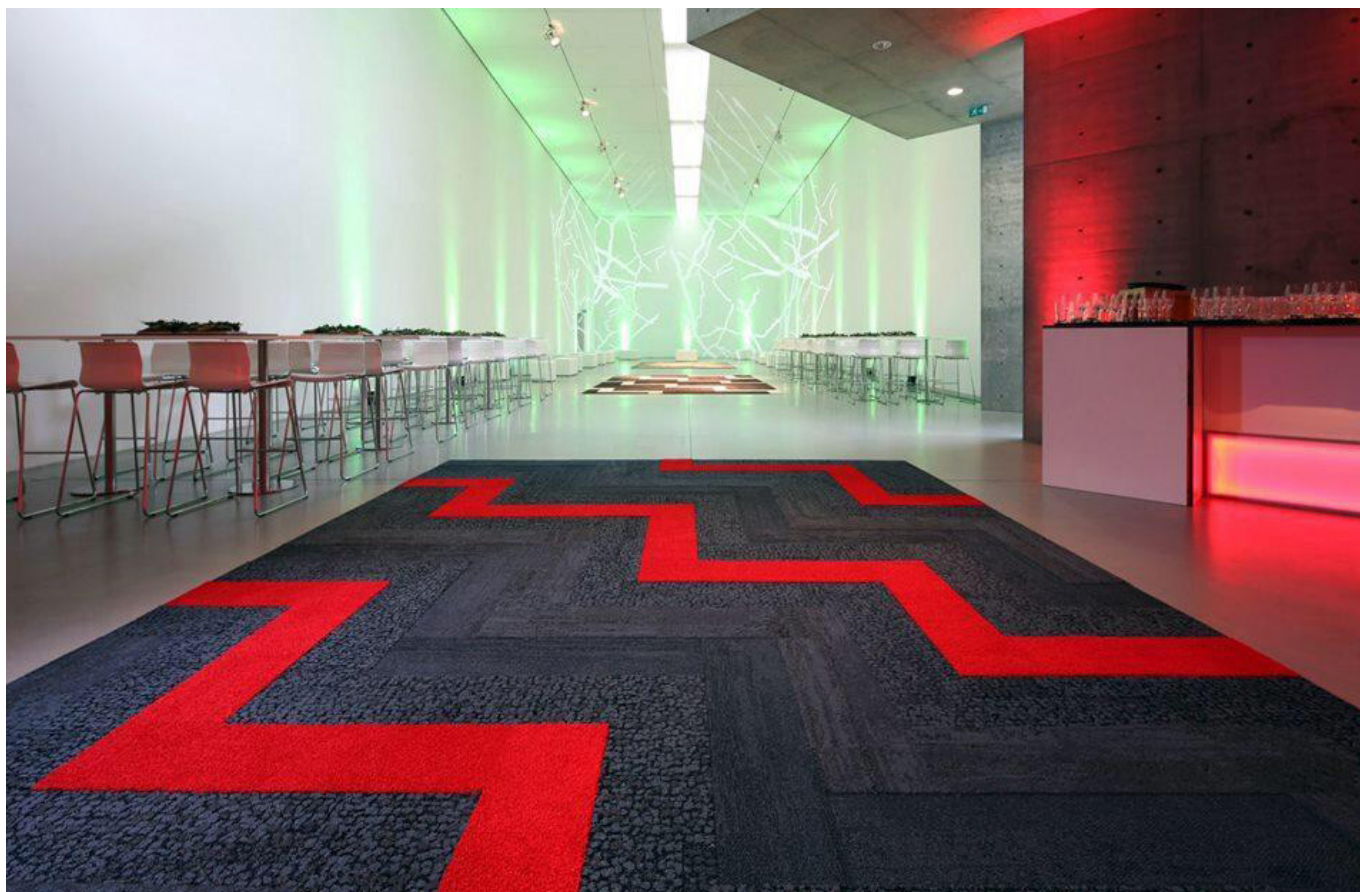

But for Interface, attractiveness does not come at the expense of ethics. The company has strived for sustainability with its products for the past twenty years. Their new Net Effect tiles offer the perfect example of both. Inspired by the sea, they are fabricated from recycled fishing nets bought from impoverished remote communities around the world. Interface is concerned with the practicality of their products as well as their appearance and sustainability. Their trademarked TacTiles system allows carpet tiles to be fitted without the use of glue, meaning that the carpet can be fitted more efficiently and can eventually be removed and recycled more simply.

Interface has provided floors to a wide range of sectors, from education to hospitality, and of course office space. That expertise feeds through to the design and fitting of their carpet tiles. As a company they recognise that most people spend one third of their lives in the workplace, and believe that the right floor covering can create a warm and welcoming working environment.

Alongside their extensive portfolio of products, Interface also offer a bespoke design service with custom prints and products. So whether you are looking to co-ordinate with an existing interior or simply promote your brand at all levels, Interface could offer the answer.
